Activity 1.2: Developing vocabulary from the hospital environment

(a) Read the following passage and use the dictionary to find the meaning of the words in bold.

A Visit to the Hospital

One day, Sarah felt sick. Her mother took her to a nearby hospital. When they arrived, a friendly nurse greeted them and guided them to see the doctor. In the doctor's room they found the doctor in his laboratory coat seated on a chair. The doctor asked Sarah how she was feeling. He listened carefully to Sarah's explanation. The doctor advised Sarah to go to the laboratory for some tests to find out what was wrong.

Sarah and her mother went to the laboratory. They found the laboratory technician also wearing a laboratory coat and gloves. He took a small sample of Sarah's blood using a syringe. Sarah was nervous, but the laboratory technician was very kind and made her feel safe. After a few minutes, the technician gave them the test results. They took the test results to the doctor. The doctor explained that Sarah needed some medicine to help her get better. The doctor prescribed the medicine and gave them a piece of paper to take to the pharmacy.

They went to the hospital pharmacy. The pharmacist gave them the medicine. The pharmacist explained how Sarah should take the medicine. Sarah's mother thanked the pharmacist and she promised him she will take care of the patient.

(b) Write the name of a person who does the following.

S/N	Activity	Name of a person
1.	Examines patients, diagnoses and treats medical conditions

sell	seller	buyer	discount	price tag
		price	cost

(b) Read the following story and answer the questions that follow.

A Day at Tupendane market

Every Saturday, Tupendane Market is full of people. Buyers and sellers gathered with their voices buzzing all around the market place. The smell of fresh fruits and vegetables filled the air, making it the perfect place to shop for the week.

FOR ONLINE

www.wazaelimu.com

Mwanaidi, a friendly fruit seller, carefully arranged her guava and watermelon on her stall. Each fruit had a price tag attached, with the guavas going for 100 shillings each, and the watermelons for 2000 shillings.

Next to her, Rejo, another seller, was busy displaying his tomatoes and onions in neat piles. He smiled as he caught sight of Mwanaidi.

"Good morning, Mwanaidi! How is business!" Rejo asked, wiping sweat from his brow.

"Morning, Rejo! It's going well, but I wish more buyers would come early." Mwanaidi replied.

Just then, a mother and her little boy approached Mwanaidi's stall. The boy's eyes lit up as he pointed at a ripe watermelon. "Mum, can we buy one of those big watermelons?" He asked eagerly.

The mother smiled. "How much does it cost?" She asked, turning to Mwanaidi. "It's 2000 shillings, but since you are my first buyer today, I will give you a discount. You can have it for 1500 shillings." Mwanaidi said, beaming.

"Thank you! We will take it." The mother replied, handing over the money.

As the woman left with her purchase, Mwanaidi turned to Rejo. "See, the key to selling is knowing when to offer a little discount!"

Meanwhile, on the other side of the market, Yobu was selling colourful clothes and utensils. He watched as a woman examined one of the vibrant fabrics and utensils.

"How much is this rice cooker?" She asked.

"That one is 40,000 shillings," Yobu said, pointing to the price tag.

www.wazeleimu.com

"Could you give me a discount?" She asked, smiling shyly.

Yobu chuckled. "For you, I can lower it to 35,000 shillings, but no less. The cost of getting these rice cookers from the factory has gone up!"

"Alright!" The woman agreed, handing him the money.

Back at Mwanaidi's stall, Rejo began selling his grains, chatting with customers about the freshest produce in the market. As the day went on, the sellers and buyers continued their lively exchanges, each finding something they needed - be it a piece of cloth, a kitchen utensil, or a juicy guava.

By evening, the sellers began packing up, satisfied with another busy day at Tupendane Market.

Questions

1. What do people do at the market?
2. What do Mwanaidi, Rejo and Yobu sell?
3. What does the word 'discount' mean?

(c) Write a sentence using each of the words in bold from the story on A Day at Tupendane Market.

(b) Read the following story and answer the questions orally.

Makelo at the bus station

Makelo travels regularly on business trips. He is well known by all bus drivers at Itilima bus station. In December, he wanted to travel to Pelalu village. He made an online booking two days before. He got seat number 3B. The ticket cost him Tsh. 20,000/=. The ticket indicated that reporting time was 5.30 a.m. and check in time 6.00 a.m. The departure time for the bus was written 6:30 a.m. and it was expected to travel for 6 hours. So, the arrival time was written 12:30 p.m. Although he had planned to travel on 24th December 2023, he postponed his trip because he fell sick before the travel date.

The next morning, he felt better and went to the bus station. He wanted to catch the morning bus. The bus ticket sales agent told him to travel in the afternoon because the morning bus was full. There were so many passengers that day. Makelo waited for the bus for over five hours. He eventually boarded the bus at 1:00 p.m. He was the first person to get into the bus. When he arrived in the village, he phoned his family and told them that he had arrived safely.

Questions

1. Why didn't Makelo travel as he planned earlier?
2. How did Makelo make his booking?
3. What makes Makelo well known by all drivers at Itilima bus station?
4. What was the time of departure for the bus?

Unit Four

Expressing past events

Introduction

Expressing past events helps us share stories, describe experiences, and explain what we did in the past. In this unit, you will learn to talk about something that happened once, things that happened many times or over a longer period in the past. The competencies developed will enable you to express past events and tell clear and interesting stories about past experiences.

Think about the words you use to talk about past events

Activity 4.1: Expressing past events using simple past

(a) Study the following sentences and say what you notice in the italicised words.

1. I danced at the party.
2. Yesterday, I watched a football match.
3. Yesterday, I walked to school.

(b) Study the following sentences and say what you notice in the italicised words

1. Mary went to Dodoma yesterday.
2. We ate pilau on Kemy's birthday.
3. She wrote an email.

A trip to the village

Allen and Pendo lived with their parents in Moshi. Last holiday, they travelled to Mkunguni village where their grandparents live. They went there to visit their grandparents. That day, Allen and Pendo woke up very early in the morning. They were supposed to board a bus. They reported at the bus stand at 6:30 in the morning. There were many other passengers at the bus stand.

Allen and Pendo checked in at 7:10 a.m., boarded the bus at 7:30, and departed at 7:30 in the morning. The driver drove very carefully. On the way to the village, the bus crossed Rau river and national parks. In one of the national parks, Allen and Pendo saw many animals. There were lions, zebras, elephants, giraffes, and monkeys. The monkeys were jumping from one tree to another. One giraffe was eating leaves from one of the tall trees in the park. Allen and Pendo were very excited to see the animals. They were busy pointing at different animals.

Bahati: That sounds great! Do you have a favourite experiment that you've done so far?

Kemy: Oh, yes! We did an experiment on making volcano with baking soda and vinegar. It was so exciting to watch the mixture as it bubbled up like lava!

Bahati: That must have been awesome! Okay, my next question: If you could change one thing about our school, what would it be?

Kemy: Hmm, I think I'd plant more trees near the playground. It would be nice to have more shade when we're outside playing.

Bahati: That's a good idea. I'd love more shade too! My last question: What's the one thing you're looking forward to seeing at this school this year?

Kemy: I'm really looking forward to taking part in our school trip to the museum. I've never been there; I heard there's a huge dinosaur exhibit!

Bahati: Indeed, the museum trip will be fun! Thanks for answering my questions, Kemy.

Unit Seven

Reading for comprehension

Introduction

When we read, we either want to obtain general or specific information. In this unit, you will learn to read to get a message from the text. The goal will be to get the skills of reading for general and specific information. The competencies developed will enable you to read and get the correct message from the text.

Think about the way you can read different texts to obtain general and specific information

Activity 7.1: Reading for general information

(a) Read the following conversations between the teacher and the pupils in the classroom.

Teacher: Good morning, class!

Class: Good morning, Teacher!

Teacher: Today, we are going to learn about something very important when reading. Does anyone know what "reading for general information" means?

Pupil 1: Is it when you read a book?

Teacher: Good guess! Yes, it involves reading, but it's a special type of reading. When we read for general information, we read to get a basic understanding of a topic. It's like reading to know a little about something, not everything.

FOR ONLINE READING ONLY
www.wazaelimu.com

Pupil 2: Oh! Like when we read a story just to enjoy it?

Teacher: Exactly! But reading for general information isn't just for stories. You can read newspapers, textbooks, or even posters on the walls. The goal is to understand the main ideas, not every small detail.

Pupil 3: So, we don't have to remember everything we read?

Teacher: That's right! You just need to understand the general idea. For example, if you're reading a book about animals, you don't need to know how every animal lives, but you should understand that animals live in different places and eat different things.

Pupil 4: Can we ask questions if we don't understand?

Teacher: Absolutely! Asking questions helps you understand the general information better. And after reading, you can tell someone what the main points were.

Pupil 5: What can we read for general information?

Teacher: Great question! You can read many things for general information, like your school textbooks, signs in the community, newspapers, or even a magazine. You just need to focus on the main message.

Pupil 6: Can we practise?

Teacher: Yes! I'll give you a short paragraph to read. Your task is to tell me the main idea when you finish. Ready?

Class: Yes, Teacher!

Teacher: [Reading aloud] "In Tanzania, there are many national parks where different animals live. Tourists from different countries come to see the animals. Some of the animals you can see are elephants, lions, and zebras."

Teacher: Now, can someone tell me the main idea?

Pupil 1: The paragraph is about national parks in Tanzania.

Pupil 2: And how tourists come to see animals there.

Teacher: Well done! You've understood the general information. This is how you read to get the main idea!

Class: Thank you, Teacher!

Teacher: You're welcome. Let's practise more with different texts in our next lesson!

Questions

1. What does "reading for general information" mean, according to the teacher?
2. Why is it important to focus on the main idea when reading for general information?
3. What example does the teacher give to explain reading for general information about animals?
4. What types of materials can you read for general information, as mentioned by the teacher?
5. What was the main idea of the paragraph that the teacher read aloud to the class?

(b) Read the story Kidoti comes late from school and answer the questions that follow.

Kidoti comes late from school

Kidoti is a Standard Four pupil. She studies at Ipole Primary School. The school is three kilometres away from her home. She goes to school by a school bus. She usually wakes up at 5 a.m. to prepare herself for school. The school bus picks her up at around 6 a.m. The lessons begin at 7 a.m. and end at 4 p.m. However, on Wednesday last week, Kidoti came home very late and her mother was very worried. After she got home, the mother and the daughter had the following conversations.

Mother: Welcome back home, my daughter!

Daughter: Thank you very much, mum!

Mother: You are so late today and you look really tired! What happened?

Daughter: I am very sorry, mum. The teacher took us to a practical session and we finished it late.

Mother: Oh, I almost fainted as I was waiting for you! What time did you finish the practical session?

Daughter: It was around 5 p.m.

Mother: Well, I now understand. By the way, what did you learn at school today?

Daughter: We learnt about keeping a flower garden and our teacher took us for practical activities.

Mother: What did you do for practical activities?

Daughter: We prepared the soil, planted the seeds and watered them.

Mother: Did you learn anything?

Daughter: Of course, yes. I learnt how to plant and take care of flowers

Mother: What else did you learn?

Daughter: I also learnt about different types of flowers. And, that there are some flowers that attract butterflies.

Mother: That's great! I wish you become a floriculturist in the future!

Daughter: (Smiling). I will, mum!

Mother: May God help you realise your dream! Did the teacher give you any homework?

Daughter: Yes, he did. I'll do it before going to bed.

Mother: Great. Now, go and have a birth.

Daughter: Thanks mum.

Thieves break into Mashaka's shop

Last week, thieves broke Mashaka's shop. They took some properties including a weighing machine. Mashaka reported the incident to the nearby police station. The Police Officer interrogated Mashaka and their conversations were as follows:

Police officer: Welcome, sir.
Mashaka: Thank you, officer.
Police officer: What can I do for you?
Mashaka: I have come to report a burglary; thieves broke into my shop last night.
Police officer: What time was it?
Mashaka: A few minutes past midnight. Ten past twelve to be exact.
Police officer: How many were they?
Mashaka: I'm not sure. But, it must be more than one.
Police officer: Did they take anything?
Mashaka: Yes, of course. They took some properties including a weighing machine.
Police officer: What is the estimate of the value of all the stolen items?
Mashaka: Five or more million shillings.
Police officer: And the weighing machine?
Mashaka: About two million.
Police officer: That's a lot, I must say!
Mashaka: Yes, indeed.
Police officer: Do you suspect anybody?
Mashaka: Yes! Two young men, Kipara and Kipepe are my suspects. They keep visiting my shop even when the shop is closed.
Police officer: We will investigate and let you know.

Activity 7.2: Reading for specific information

(a) Read the following conversations between the teacher and the pupils in the classroom.

Teacher: Good morning, class!

Class: Good morning, Teacher!

Teacher: Today, we are going to talk about another important way of reading. Yesterday, we learnt about reading for general information. Can anyone remind me what that means?

Pupil 1: It's when you read to understand the main idea, but not all the details.

Teacher: That's correct! Well done! Today, we will talk about a different kind of reading called "reading for specific information." Does anyone know what that might mean?

Pupil 2: Maybe it means reading to find something special?

Teacher: Very close! When we read for specific information, we are looking for something very particular or a small detail in the text. We focus on finding exact facts or answers, not just the general idea.

Pupil 3: Like if we want to know how many elephants live in a park?

Teacher: Exactly! If you're reading a book or a paragraph and you need to know how many elephants live in a park, you're looking for specific information.

www.wazeelimu.com

Pupil 4: So, we are looking for small details?

Teacher: Yes, that's right. For example, let's say you are reading a timetable and you need to know what time your English class starts. You don't need to read the whole timetable; you just look for the time for English. That's reading for specific information.

Pupil 5: Can we also look for names or dates?

Teacher: Yes! You can look for names, dates, numbers, places, or any specific detail that you need. Now, let's practice.

Teacher: [Hands out a short passage to the pupils] Here's a short paragraph. I want you to find the name of the park mentioned, the number of lions living there, and the year it was established. Ready?

Class: Yes, Teacher!

Teacher: [Reading aloud] "Serengeti National Park is famous for its wildlife. It has over 4,000 lions and it was established in 1951. Many tourists visit the park each year."

Teacher: Now, who can tell me the name of the park mentioned?

Pupil 1: It's Serengeti National Park.

Teacher: Excellent! And how many lions live there?

Pupil 2: 4,000 lions!

Teacher: Great! Lastly, when was the park established?

Pupil 3: In 1951.

Teacher: Very good! You have found all the specific information. This is how we read when we are looking for specific facts.

Pupil 4: So, we don't have to read the whole thing, just find what we need?

Teacher: That's right. When you know exactly what information you need, you just search for that part. Well done today, class!

Class: Thank you, Teacher!

Teacher: You're welcome. We will practice more in the next lesson!

She cried loudly calling for help and people came running to help her. They took her to a nearby hospital. In the doctor's room, the dialogue went as follows.

Doctor: What's your name?
Mrs Babu: Bahati Frank.
Doctor: What happened to your leg?
Mrs Babu: I stepped on a broken piece of a glass bottle.
Doctor: Oh sorry. I can see the cut. I am very sorry. I will call a nurse who will clean the cut and do some dressing for you.
Mrs Babu: Thank you, doctor.
Doctor: Is it very painful?
Mrs Babu: Yes, of course.
Doctor: Don't worry, Mrs Babu. We will give you some pain killers.

Mrs Nyoni and her family live in the city centre. Every Saturday, she goes to the market. The market is in the city near a bus stand. Last Saturday, she took a bus to the market. She wanted to buy a lot of supplies for her home. Back home, there were no food, meat, and vegetables in the kitchen. She also needed to buy new plates, spoons, glasses and basins. When she got off the bus, she walked straight to the market. Suddenly, she got a phone call from her daughter, Maria. "Hello, mum, David just got an accident." He fell and got hurt when he was playing football. "What" She shouted. "He got injured when playing football," Maria replied. "Where is he now?" Mrs Nyoni asked. "He is in the sitting room getting first aid from our brother," said Maria.

Mrs Nyoni stopped shopping. She quickly went to the bus stop to catch a bus back home. There were so many travellers waiting for buses. There were a few buses coming to the stop. That was really a bad day for her. Mrs Nyoni became worried as she wanted to get home immediately to take David to hospital. She did not know what to do.

Luckily, Mrs Maganga, Mrs Nyoni's neighbour, was nearby. She had parked her car near the bus stop. She called Mrs Nyoni, "Do you want to go home, Mrs Nyoni?" Mrs Nyoni looked back and saw Mrs Maganga calling. "Yes please, I want to go home but there are no buses to get me there". "Don't worry my neighbour, I can give you a ride," Said Mrs Maganga. "Oh, thank you so much!" Mrs Nyoni said getting into Mrs Maganga's car. They quickly drove to Mrs Nyoni's home. They found David lying on the floor crying.

They took him into Mrs Maganga's car. After a few minutes, they got to hospital. David was taken to the emergency section on a stretcher. He was examined by Dr Seko. Then, a nurse took him to the X-ray room for further examination. He had a fracture. The nurse wrapped around the fractured area with a Plaster of Paris (POP). David was given a bed rest. A few days later, David was discharged. He thanked his mother, Mrs Maganga, Dr Seko and the nurse for their help. After a few weeks, the POP was removed from the injured part.

Unit Eight

The basic features of spoken English

Introduction

Spoken English is different from written English. Spoken English mainly involves the use of the word of mouth to communicate. In this unit, you will learn to pronounce words with similar or different sounds. You will also learn to pronounce phrases and sentences with rising and falling tones to distinguish or convey meanings. The competencies developed will enable you to speak English with more correct tone than you do now.

Think about the way you use tone to convey different meaning

Activity 8.1: Pronouncing words with similar sounds

(a) Pronounce the following pairs of words.

see/sea

bye/buy

meat/meet

right/write

son/sun

www.wazaelimu.com

(b) Read the following passage then write the meaning of the words in bold.

Hamisi and Sophia were talking about how tricky English can be with words that sound the same but mean different things. Sophia mentioned see and sea, explaining that one is about vision and the other is a large body of water. Hamisi added that buy and bye can be confusing, as buy means to get something and bye means a way to bid farewell and a shortened version of the word 'goodbye'. They both laughed about meet and meat, noting that one is about coming together with someone and the other is food. Sophia pointed out right and write, with one meaning correct and the other meaning to use a pen. They also talked about son and sun, where one is a child and the other is the star. They agreed that while English can be confusing, it's also quite fun.

Meanings.

1. see means _____ but sea means _____
2. bye means _____but buy means _____
3. meat means _____ but meet means _____
4. son means _____ but sun means _____
5. right means _____ but write means _____

(c) Read the following sentences aloud and say which words have similar sounds.

1. You should tell the shopkeeper bye after you buy what you want.
2. You will see the sea when you visit to Dar es Salaam.
3. We meet to eat meat on Sundays.
4. Write with your right hand.
5. My son baths the sun in the morning.

The lost kitten

One sunny morning, Pendo was playing in the garden. Suddenly, she heard a soft meow. “What could that be?” she wondered.

She followed the sound and found a tiny kitten under a big tree. The kitten looked scared. “Oh no! Are you lost, little kitten?” Pendo asked, her voice full of concern.

The kitten looked up at Pendo with big, sad eyes. “Don’t worry,” she said gently. “I will help you find your home.”

Pendo carried the kitten carefully and walked around the village. She asked everyone she met, “Have you seen this kitten before?”

Finally, an old woman smiled and said, “Yes! That is my kitten. Thank you so much, Pendo!”

Pendo was happy she had helped. She returned the kitten to the old woman and said with a smile, “Take care of your kitten!”

Unit Nine

Writing wishes and short messages

Introduction

Best wishes are friendly messages we send to different people such as relatives, friends, and parents for various purposes including congratulating, encouraging, and appreciating them. In this unit, you will learn to send congratulatory and appreciation messages and wish people happy anniversaries for various events. The competencies developed will enable you to wish others well in different life events.

Think about the messages people send to others to congratulate or encourage

Activity 9.1: Writing best wishes

(a) Read the following story and decide what to write.

Once upon a time, there was a young girl named Pendo who loved making her friends and family feel special. She has always wanted to learn how to write best wishes for different occasions. One day, her teacher, Mr Mussa, decided to teach the class about writing heartfelt wishes.

Mr Mussa began, "Wishes are special words that make people feel happy, loved, and cared for. Today, we will learn how to write three types of wishes: Birthday Wishes, Best Wishes for Exams, and Get Well Soon Wishes."

Mr Mussa wrapped up the lesson by saying, "When writing a wish, always think about how you want the other person to feel. Be kind, use encouraging words, and try to make them smile. Add something special that shows you care about them. Remember, your words can make a big difference!"

After the lesson, Pendo felt excited. She could not wait to write her wishes to brighten someone's day. She knew now that her words could bring joy, comfort, and encouragement to the people she cared about with a little thought and kindness.

And so, Pendo picked up her pen and began to write, filling her notebook with beautiful wishes for all the special people in her life.

Activity 9.2: Writing birthday wishes

(a) Study the following best wishes message. Then, describe how the message looks like and what it is about.

Dear...

I would like to send you warm regards as you celebrate your birthday. Happy birthday!

Early morning routine

My name is Olewado. Every day, I wake up at 5:30 am. At 5:40 a.m., I cook my tea. At 6:00 a.m., I take my breakfast and wash the dishes thereafter. Since my parents wake up at 6:05 am, I thus have to greet them before I have a bath at 6:10 a.m. At 6:15 a.m., we all gather in the sitting room to say prayers. My brother and I put on school uniform immediately after that, ready for school at 6:25 a.m. We walk for about 30 minutes every morning.

My brother walks faster than I do but I try to keep pace with him. By 6:55 a.m., we get to the school compound. Lessons begin at around 8:00am. Before we get into the classrooms, we have to clean the compound. Our school has a store where all pupils keep their brooms.

Questions

1. At what time does Olewado wake up?
2. What does Olewado do after waking up?
3. At what time does Olewado cook tea?
4. How long do Olewado and her brother walk to school every morning?
5. When do lessons begin at Olewado's school?

(c) Re-read the text and prepare Olewado's morning routine schedule.

(d) Read the following text.

My Saturday routine

My name is Malea. Over the weekend, I have time to stay with my siblings and parents at home. I wake up at 6.30 a.m. Our mother assigns to us different household activities. From 9:00 a.m. to 11:00 a.m., I wash my school uniform. During the rainy season, it takes time for my clothes to get dry. My mother advises me to wash them earlier than 9:00 a.m. After washing my clothes, I help my mother to wash the dishes we use during breakfast in the morning. At around 11:30 a.m., my mother starts preparing some food for the family. I stay with my mother in the kitchen. I wish to help her cook ugali but she says I cannot manage to cook food for all people in the family. Our family has a lot of visitors on Saturdays. I help her wash some utensils. The pan that my mother uses to cook ugali normally creates a hard layer
