Introduction

The English Pupil's Book Standard Five has been prepared following the 2023 English Language Syllabus for Primary Education, Standards III–VI, issued by the Ministry of Education, Science and Technology. This textbook is the second edition of the 2021 English Pupil's Book Standard Five, published by TIE as per the 2018 Basic Education Syllabus for Standard III-VII.

This textbook consists of twelve units: Developing vocabulary, comparing things, Describing locations and giving directions, expressing possession, Expressing completed and unfinished actions, Using conjunctions, Using active and passive voices, Listening for comprehension, Speaking English clearly and naturally, Expressing simple messages, Writing clear and concise messages, and Writing creatively. The book contains learning activities and real-life examples that will enable you to express yourself appropriately and fluently in both oral and written English. In addition, the book will help you expand your vocabulary for everyday communication.

Additional learning resources are available in the TIE e-Library at https://ol.tie.go.tz

Unit One

Developing vocabulary

Introduction

Vocabulary is one of the most important aspects of learning a language for everyday communication. One cannot communicate effectively if he or she does not know the vocabulary of the target language. In this unit, you will learn words that mean the opposite. You will also learn words that mean the same, and solve word puzzles from various media. Finally, you will write short passages using vocabulary referring to objects in natural settings. The competences developed will enable you to communicate meanings clearly.

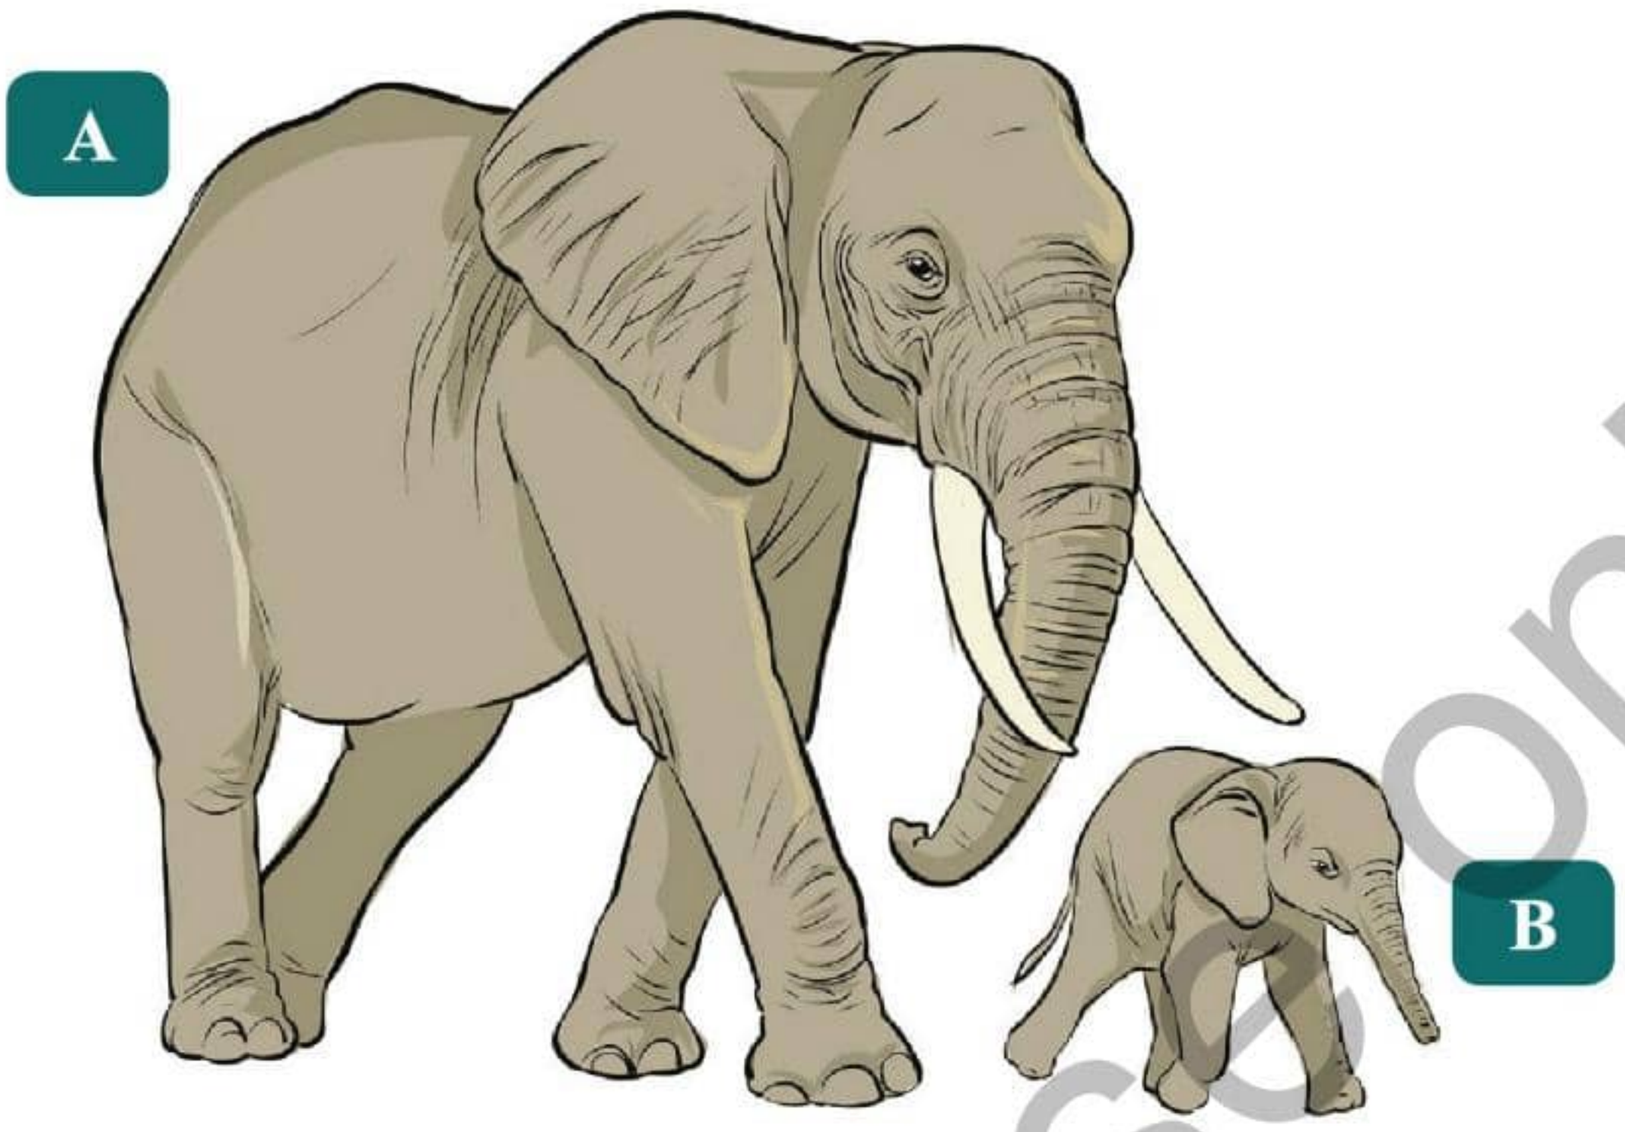

Think about how we could communicate in English without adequate vocabulary.

Learning words that mean the opposite

Read the passage and look at the pictures of elephants to answer the questions that follow.

Words are powerful tools that help us express what we see, feel and think. One way to develop our vocabulary is by learning words that mean the opposite of each other. These are called opposites or antonyms. For example, the antonym of "hot" is "cold" and the antonym of "happy" is "sad". Knowing the antonyms helps us speak and write more clearly and understand what others say more easily.

Questions

1. What is the name of the animals in the picture?
2. What is the size of animal A compared to animal B?
3. What is the size of animal B compared to animal A?
4. What is the opposite of the word small?
5. What is the opposite of the words huge, large, and big?
6. What is the technical term for words that mean the opposite?

Did you know?

Words that mean the opposite of one another are known as antonyms.

Examples

hot – cold

happy – sad

big – small

Activity 1.1

Compile a list of twenty pairs of words with opposite meanings using the school library or other sources.

Learning words that mean the same

Read the passage and look at the pictures of buildings to answer the questions that follow.

Did you know that many words in English can mean the same thing? These are called synonyms. For example, "big" and "large" are synonyms because they both describe something of great size. Learning synonyms helps you enrich your vocabulary, make your speaking and writing more interesting, and say the same thing in different ways.

Questions

1. What do you see in the picture?
2. What word can be used to describe the height of those buildings?
3. What other words mean the same as the word used to answer question 2 above?
4. What is the technical term for words that mean the same or almost have the same meaning?

Did you know?

Words with the same or almost identical meanings are known as synonyms.

Examples

big – large – huge

happy – joyful – glad fast – quick – speedy

Activity 1.2

Compile a list of twenty pairs of words that have the same meaning using the school library or other sources.

Speaking practice

(a) Read and sing the following song.

Come and Learn

(Hip hop)

Oh! Come and learn,
The power of words today! x2
We can find new meanings,
And discover the opposites,
When we learn with synonyms!
We can match words,
And find their twins,
When we play with synonyms!

We can tell what's same,
And spot what's different,
Learning antonyms each day!

Oh! Come and learn,
The power of words today! x2

We can lift 'happy,'
Or drop it to 'sad,'
Using antonyms with care!
We can swap 'big' for 'small,'
Or 'fast' for 'slow,'
Finding opposites with flair!

We can link with words,
And connect ideas,
Through the power of synonyms!

Oh! Come and learn,
The power of words today! x2

Unit Two

Comparing things

Introduction

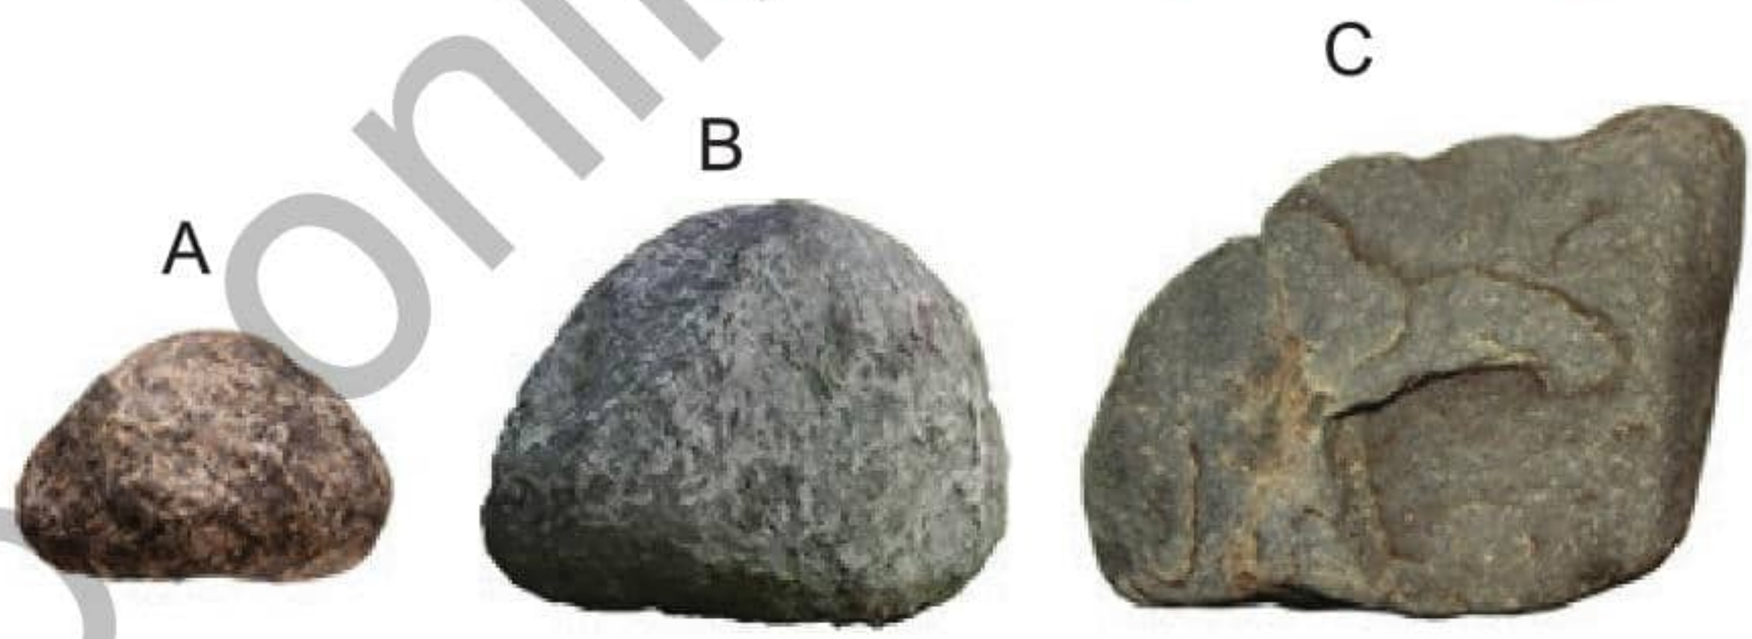

In our daily lives, we often compare people, animals, objects, or places based on their size, quality, or quantity to understand them better. In this unit, you will learn to compare things using the right words to show similarities or differences in size, quality, and quantity. You will learn to compare things using words like big, bigger, and biggest, or small, smaller, and smallest among other words. You will also learn to use words such as 'much,' 'more,' and 'most' to show comparisons. The competences developed will enable you to speak English better.

Think about how you compare things.

Comparing size of things or living organisms

Look at the three stones in the picture and complete the dialogue below.

Dialogue

Pupil 1: Where is stone A?

Pupil 1: Is stone C on the left of the other two stones?

Pupil 1: Is stone A on the left of stone B and C?

For online use only

Pupil 2: _____ (Yes, No) stone A is on the _____ (left, middle, right) of stone B and C.

Pupil 1: Is stone B on the left of stone A and C?

Pupil 2: _____ (Yes, No) stone B is in the _____ (left, middle, right) of stone A and B.

Did you know?

The pictures of stones we have seen differ in size. Stone A is big, but Stone B is bigger than Stone A. Stone C is bigger than Stone B and Stone A. Thus, Stone C is the biggest because it is bigger than Stone A and B.

We often talk about how things are different or similar. We compare things to describe them better, for example, we might say one box is bigger than the other, or one toy is bigger than the other. When we compare things, we use words that show how something looks as compared to another similar thing or how someone looks compared to someone else. We may use words to show differences in size, such as big, bigger, biggest, or large, larger, largest, or small, smaller, smallest. We may also use words to show differences in quality, such as good, better, best, or clean, cleaner, cleanest.

Speaking practice

(a) Complete the dialogue below by adding the missing information using the picture of the three stones.

Dialogue

Teacher: Stones A, B, and C in the picture are of the same size, isn't that so?

Pupil: No, they are different.

Teacher: Okay. How are they different? For example, what is the difference between Stone A and Stone B?

Pupil: Stone B is _____ than Stone A.

Teacher: Yes, you are right. In other words, you can also say, Stone A is not as _____ as Stone B.

Teacher: What about Stone C?

Pupil: Stone C is _____.

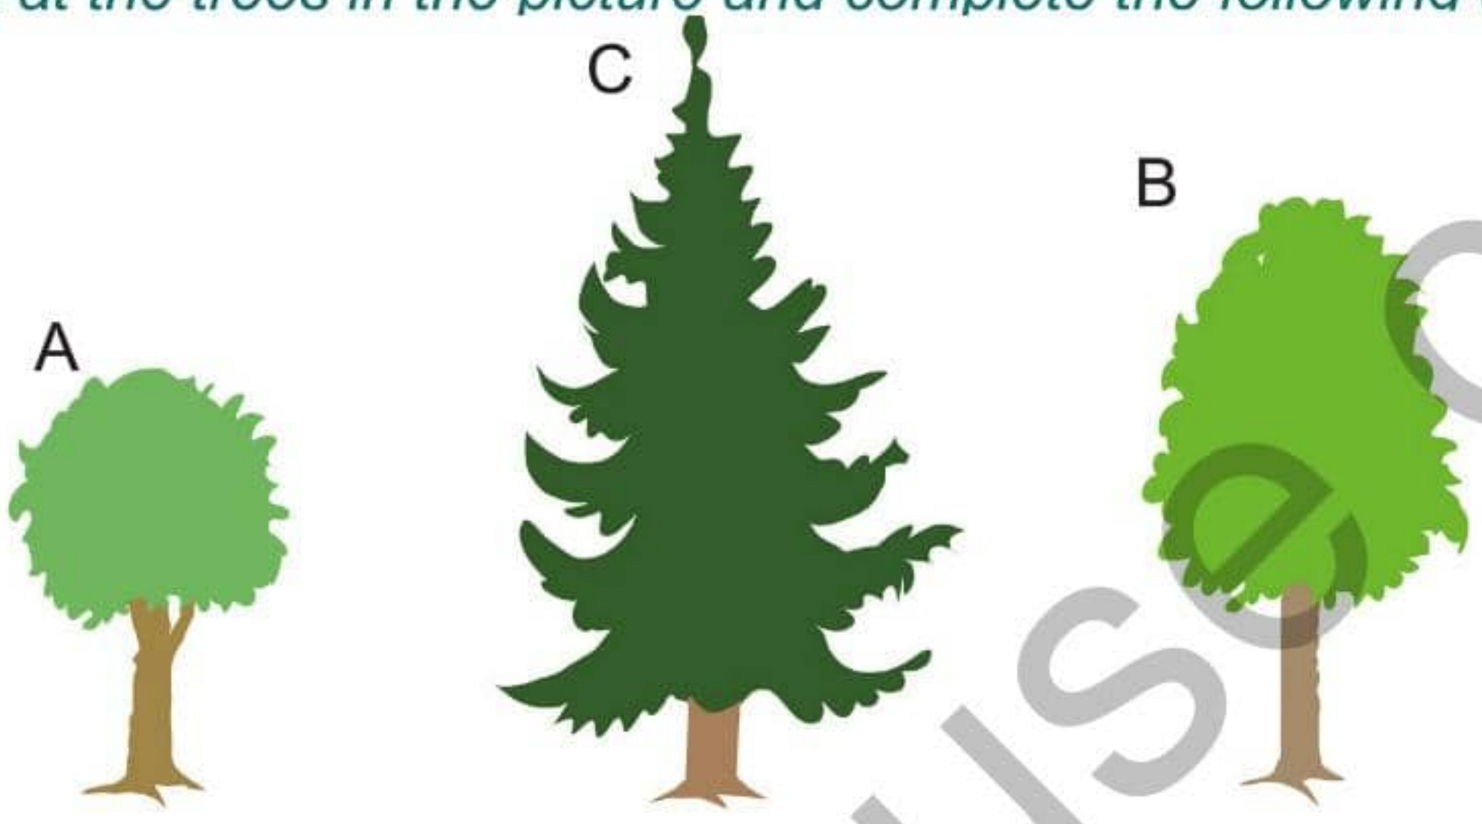

For online use only

Teacher: Is stone B bigger than stone C?

Pupil: _____, Stone C is _____ than Stone B. Stone C is also _____ than Stone A. Thus, Stone C is _____ Teacher: Well done! You have correctly described the sizes of the three stones.

(b) Look at the trees in the picture and complete the following dialogue.

Pupil 1: Trees A, B and C are tall. Which tree is the tallest?

Pupil 2: Tree _____ is the tallest of all.

Pupil 1: Is tree A taller than tree B?

Pupil 2: _____ (Yes, No) tree A is _____ than tree B.

Pupil 1: What about tree C, is it tallller than tree B?

Pupil 2: _____ (Yes, No) tree C is taller than tree B.

Pupil 1: How is tree C different from tree A in terms of height?

Pupil 2: Tree C is _____than tree A, and tree C is taller than tree B. Thus, tree C is the tallest of all.

Did you also know?

We use comparatives and superlatives to compare people, animals, or things. Comparatives show differences between two things. For example, “A ruler is longer than a pencil”.

Superlatives show characteristics of something or someone that stands above the rest: the highest or lowest quality among three or more things, people, or other objects. For example, “Lake Tanganyika is the deepest lake in Africa,” or “Lake Victoria is the largest freshwater lake in Africa”.

Not for online use only

Reading practice

(a) Read the following story and answer the questions that follow.

Comparisons on a walk

One day, Anna and her friends went for a walk in the forest. They saw three rocks in the forest. The first rock was big, the second was bigger, but the third was the biggest. It was so large that they could all sit on it like a bench. Nearby, there were three trees: one tree was small, another was smaller, and the last was the smallest. It was so tiny that it looked more like a garden plant. Anna smiled and said, "We saw big, bigger, and the biggest rocks as well as small, smaller, and the smallest trees."

Questions

1. Which rock was the biggest?
2. What is the comparative form of the word 'big'?
3. Which tree was the smallest?
4. What is the superlative form of the word 'small'?
5. Write three forms of the word 'big' as used in the story.
6. Write three forms of the word 'small' as used in the story.
7. Why did the children say the last rock was the biggest?

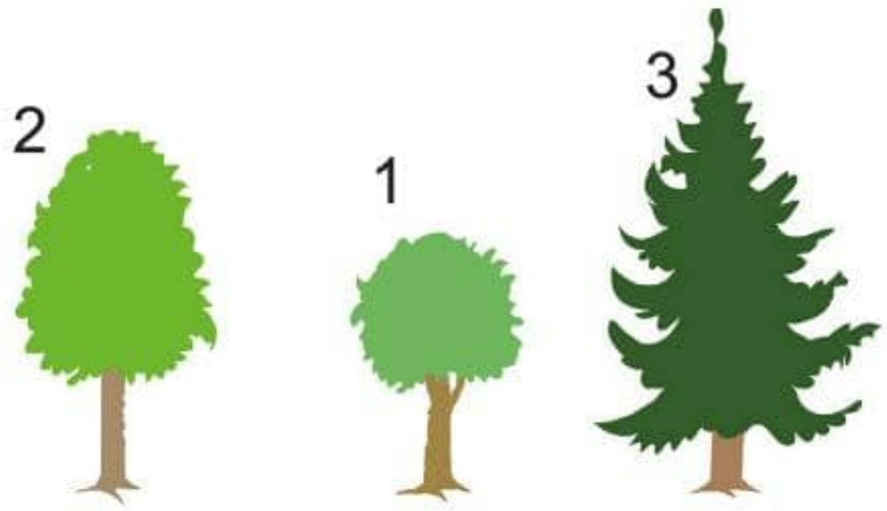

Activity 2.1

Take a short tour at your school, observe things found in your classroom, outside the classroom, or in the neighbourhood, and explain how similar or different they look. You can use items such as furniture in the school, plants, or animals in the neighbourhood.

Comparing the quantity of things or living organisms

(a) Look at the pictures. Read the dialogue below the pictures. The dialogue is about Saumu and James exploring things and pictures in their classroom.

books	pens	animals

Saumu: (Looking at the table) Wow, James, look at this! There are two books on the table.

James: Yes, I can see them! But take a look at the shirt pocket. There are more pens in it than there are books on the table.

Saumu: You're right! There are three pens in the pocket and only two books on the table. So, the pocket has more pens than there are books on the table.

James: And look at the animals. There are four animals!

Saumu: Yeah! There are more animals in the picture than books on the table or pens in the shirt pocket!

James: Right! Four animals, three pens, and two books. So, the pictures show more animals than pens and books.

Saumu: Exactly! There are more animals than pens or books.

James: I agree. And there are also more pens and animals than books.

Saumu: Learning with pictures is fun!

James: It sure is! Now I understand how to use "more...than" when we compare things.

Questions

1. How many books are on the table?
   There are _____.
2. Are there more books on the table than pens in the shirt pocket?
   (Yes, No) _____, there are _____ than _____.

5. How many animals are in the picture?
   There are _____.
6. Are there more animals than pens in the picture?
   (Yes, No) _____, there are _____ than _____.

(b) Read the following passage and answer the questions that follow.

At the market

Last Saturday, Razia and her brother Mohamed went to the market. Razia bought more oranges than Mohamed. Mohamed bought more bananas than Razia. The oranges were sweeter than the bananas. They both had fun and Razia said that the market was more exciting than the supermarket.

Questions

1. Who bought more oranges?
2. Which fruit was sweeter than the other?
3. Where did Razia and Mohamed go?
4. What did Razia say about the market?

Activity 2.2

You are helping your sister or brother plan for her or his birthday party. He/she asked you to prepare a shopping list for the party. Prepare the shopping list explaining what you will need to buy in excess using "more...than" or "less...than". To be able to do this, your list should have paired items.

Unit Three

Describing locations and giving directions

Introduction

When we want to talk about movement, direction and location of something or someone, we use prepositions that show direction and location. In this unit, you will use the words 'towards', 'between', 'beside', 'from', 'into', 'onto', 'through', and 'across' to describe location and direction of different objects. The competences developed will enable you to tell where something or someone is located in different communicative contexts.

Think about the words you use to tell where something or someone is located.

Reading practice

Read the following passage and answer the questions that follow.

A visit to the village

Last Sunday, Asha and her brother, Juma, visited their grandmother in the village. To reach the village, they walked across a small bridge over the river. On the other side of the river, they saw a cow resting under a big tree. When they arrived at their grandmother's house, they found her sitting on a mat. There was a basket placed between her and the fire. Asha put her bag on the bench and went into the kitchen to help with the cooking. Later that day, they walked to the farm and picked some fresh maize. Then, they returned home happily from the farm.

Questions

1. Where did Asha and Juma visit last Sunday?
2. What did they cross to get to the other side of the river?
3. Where was the cow resting?
4. What was placed between the grandmother and the fire?
5. Where did Asha put her bag?
6. Where did Asha go to help with the cooking?
7. What did they pick from the farm?

Unit Four

Expressing possession

Introduction

In daily communication, we use certain words to show our responsibilities and connections in our family, community, or nation. In this unit, you will learn to use possessive adjectives such as 'my', 'you', 'his', 'her', and 'their' to express possession. You will also learn to express possession using possessive pronouns such as 'mine', 'yours', 'his', 'hers' and 'theirs'. The competences developed will enable you to express ownership and belonging in English.

Think about the words used to say something belongs to somebody or something.

Expressing possession using possessive adjectives

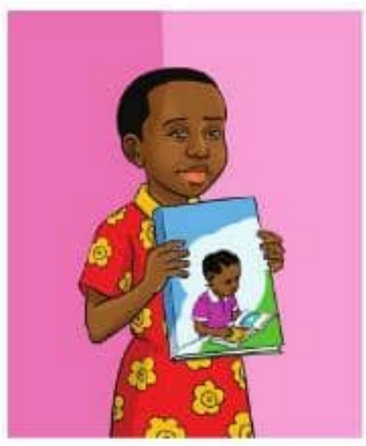

Look at the picture and read the sentence beside it. Say, which word expresses possession in each sentence.

1.

It is its bone.

2.

It is her radio.

3.

It is my book.

4.

It is our tablet.

Police Officer: We understand the situation. Mashaka, do you have anything to say for yourself?

Mashaka: (Sighing) I did not think about the consequences. I'm sorry.

Mwaluko: You should have asked if you needed help.

Police Officer: We've heard enough. Now, let's write the statement.

Mashaka's Father: Mashaka! I've just heard what you have done. I thought you've gone to school this morning, but you went to steal from Mwaluko's house! I warned you several times, but you have never changed!

Mashaka: (Looking down) Father, I have made a big mistake. I'm sorry!

Mashaka's Mother: Oh, Mashaka! We provided you with everything you needed. We fed you well, bought you school uniform, and sent you to school. Why have you done this? What else do you want, my son? (Crying.)

Mashaka: (Crying) I never thought about the pain I have caused. Please forgive me!

Police Officer: Now, Mashaka will have to take responsibility for his actions. He has been caught with the evidence, so the court of law will teach him his lesson.

Mashaka: (Crying) Why did I do that? I didn't listen to my parents. Now, I'm in trouble.

Sadick: Hello, Anna.

Anna: Hello, Sadick. How're you doing?

Sadick: I'm doing great, Anna. How about you?

Anna: I'm fine.

Sadick: Oh, excuse me, Anna. Look, I started reading this book last month, but I still haven't finished it. I'm trying to make a sentence about this situation, but I'm finding it difficult.

Anna: Oh, do you mean making a sentence about something you started in the past but have not finished yet?

Sadick: Yes, Anna. That's precisely what I mean.

Anna: That's good. You can say, "I have been reading this book since last month." This means you started reading the book last month and are still reading it. Or, you can say, "I have been reading this book for a month." This means you have been reading the book for a month and are still reading it.

Sadick: Aha, thank you. I can now make sentences to express actions I started in the past but I haven't yet finished them.

Anna: Great. Bye!

Unit Six

Using conjunctions

Introduction

In communication, we connect words and concepts to build complex sentences conveying the intended meaning. In this unit, you will practise using conjunctions in oral and written texts. You will use the conjunctions 'either…or', 'neither...nor' and 'too…to' to join sentences that show choices and comparison. The competences developed will enable you to express clearly and precisely alternatives, negatives, and limitations in communication.

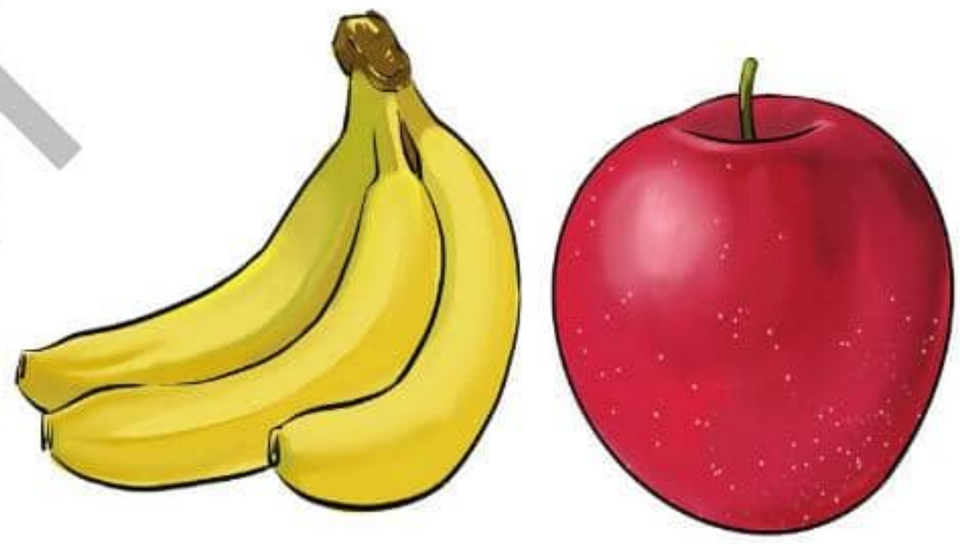

Think about the words you use when expressing choices and comparisons.

Using 'either … or'

Look at the pictures, and read the questions and the statements.

What can the boy choose to eat?

The boy can choose to eat either a banana or an apple.

For online use only

What can the girl choose to wear?

The girl can choose to wear either a red or a blue blouse.

Did you know?

The conjunction "either…or" suggests making one choice between two things, persons, or conditions. For example, "Either Baraka or Zawadi will clean the window" means one of these two will clean the window.

Reading practice

Read the following sentences and describe the choices in each sentence.

Example: Janeth needs either a pen or a pencil to do her homework.

Description: The first choice is 'a pen' and the second choice is 'a pencil.'

1. She can either go away or call the police, I don't care.
2. It is either green or yellow. I don't remember well.
3. You can stay with either me or Janet.
4. I go to either the library or the playground.
5. You can eat either rice or ugali.
6. I've taken some money to buy either an orange or a mango.
7. The keys are either on the hook or in the drawer.

For online use only

Speaking practice

Look at the following pairs of pictures. Then, make two sentences from each pair using 'either…or'.

i. Pair 1

museum

Examples

1. The pupils will go to either the zoo or the museum.
2. We will visit either the zoo or the museum.

ii. Pair 2

1. _____
2. _____

iii. Pair 3

a pair of sandals

a pair of shoes

1. _____
2. _____

Activity 6.1

Follow the instructions to play the 'Either Or Game'.

Either jump or crouch down.

Either turn to your friend and say 'hi' or turn to your friend and say 'bye'.

Either put yor hands on your head or put your head on the table.

Either stick out your tongue or touch your nose.

Either sit under the table or sit next to the door.

Either hop around the table or tip toe around the table.

Using 'neither … nor'

(a) Look at the pictures and read the sentences.

Sentence 1. The child can't eat bananas because they are rotten.

Sentence 2. The child can't eat apples because they are rotten.

The child can eat neither bananas nor apples because they are rotten.

For Online Use Only

(b) Study the pictures and the sentences below them.

The dog is not awake.

The cat is not awake.

Neither the dog nor the cat is awake.*

Did you know?

The conjunction "neither...nor" joins two negative alternatives. For example, Neither Bakari nor James opened the window. This means Bakari did not open the window; James did not open the window either.

Reading practice

(a) Look at the pictures. Then, read the respective sentences above and below the pictures.

We got so wet. We had taken neither umbrellas nor raincoats with us!

We had not taken umbrellas with us!

We had not taken raincoats with us!

For Online Use Only

(b) Split into two sentences the following sentences joined using neither… nor conjunction.

Example: Neither John nor Peter is at school today.

John is not at school today.

Peter is not at school today either.

1. Neither the dog nor the cat wants to eat.
2. She likes neither rice nor beans.
3. We saw neither the sun nor the moon.
4. Neither my brother nor my sister can swim.

(c) Read the questions in each card and answer them using 'neither…nor'.

1 Will you take a taxi or a bodaboda back home today?	2 Did you watch a TV or play football yesterday?	3 Will you visit your uncle or your aunt this weekend?
4 What is your favourite dish: chicken with rice or fish with rice?	5 What is your dream secondary school: boarding or day school?	6 Would you rather live in Arusha or Mbeya?
7 Have you been to Mwanza or Kagera?	8 Do you go to school on Sundays or on public holidays?	9 Would you rather go to school on foot or by bus?

Unit Seven

Using active and passive voices

Introduction

In everyday communication, the active voice focuses on the doer of the action rather than the receiver. Conversely, the passive voice shifts the focus to the receiver of the action rather than the doer. In this unit, you will explore using active and passive voices in everyday communication. You will practise transforming sentences from active to passive and passive to active voices. You will learn why and when we use the passive voice in communication. The competences developed will enable you communicate effectively and with clarity and flexibility in English.

Think about the words and sentences you use when you focus on telling what is done but not who does it.

Using the active and passive voices to communicate in different contexts

Look at the pictures and answer the questions.

1. Who kicked the ball?
   (the boy/the ball) _____.
2. Who did the action?
   The boy _____.
3. What happened to the ball?
   The ball _____.
4. Was the ball kicked by the boy?
   Yes/No _____.

For online use only

1. Who kicked the ball?
   The girl _____.
2. Who did the action?
   (the girl/the ball) _____.
3. What happened to the ball?
   The ball _____.
4. Was the ball kicked by the girl?
   Yes/No _____.

Did you know?

When we talk or write, we sometimes want to show who is doing the action. If we want to show who does something we use the active sentence. Example, "The boy kicked the ball". Other times, we want to show what is being done or who receives the action. Then, we use the passive sentence. Example, "The ball was kicked by the boy".

Reading and writing practice

(a) Read the following texts in bubbles about fixing a computer to get ideas about the active and passive voices.

Active voice

Mapesa is fixing a computer.

Passive voice

4.	_____	_____
5.	_____	_____

(d) Read the following story and answer the questions that follow.

Mr Fungo and the community

Mr Fungo is a well-known person in our community, and everyone seems to like him. He is always there to help, and offers advice to make things better for everyone. He works hard as a community lorry driver. Even though his salary is not high, he supports other people in whatever way possible.

Some people call him 'a man of the people' because he always puts others first. Other people call him 'a generous man' because he is always giving, whether it is time, help, or advice. A lot of people even say he has a golden heart, meaning that he is very kind.

One day, something unexpected happened. While Mr Fungo was reversing his lorry, he accidentally damaged the village's water tap. The water supply was cut off for a few days. People were disappointed but took it as a minor accident. Therefore, they were not angry with him. Mr Fungo promised to fix the tap the following Monday, and everyone believed him.

Some people in the community did not want others to think Mr Fungo had done something wrong. Thus, when others asked about the water shortage, the answers were as follows.

For online use only

"The tap was damaged."
"The tap was damaged when the car was reversed."
"A mistake was made."
"The tap will be fixed on Monday."

In the end, everything worked out. Mr Fungo fulfilled his promise. The water service was restored, and everyone appreciated how Mr Fungo always tried to help. It was just an accident, but it showed how much the community trusted and respected him.

(f) Read the following part of interview text from The Guardian Online while paying attention to active and passive voice sentences. Then, answer the questions that follow.

"Boda boda [motorcycle] drivers played singeli on loudspeakers. Those new rhythms flooded our neighbourhoods and I couldn't help but fall into its nets," he [Ramadhani Mhando] says.

Muhando – known as K-Zungu – is a singeli artiste; the first the country has known with albinism. Zungu means 'white man' in Kiswahili, and K is the first letter of my grandfather's name, Kaniki. That's why I chose that name," he says [during the interview].

Albinism is caused by the lack of pigmentation in skin, hair and eyes and affects one in 1,400 Tanzanians. This hereditary condition is bound with superstition. Some people believe that the body parts of people with albinism can bring wealth or cure illnesses.

The myth has led to attacks and killings of people with albinism in the country. UN statistics show that 75 people with albinism were murdered in Tanzania between 2000 and 2016.

Unit Eight

Listening for comprehension

Introduction

Listening for comprehension is essential when learning English. It means interpreting, understanding, and responding to what you hear. In this unit, you will respond to oral instructions by performing different tasks. You will also listen to stories and answer questions about them. You will learn to identify main and supporting ideas from what you hear. Thereafter, you will practise summarising the key points. Finally, you will retell stories in your own words. The competences developed will help you to communicate better in English.

Think about how people could communicate without understanding and interpreting information presented orally.

Identifying the main and supporting ideas in a story

Reading practice

(a) Read the story 'Road accident' carefully. Then, answer the questions that follow, focusing on identifying the main idea and supporting ideas.

Road accident

Last week, I visited my aunt in a nearby district. On the way, our bus stopped suddenly. We saw four people getting off the bus. A schoolboy was lying on the road. He was hurt badly. A car had hit him while crossing the road.

Next to him was a school bag. A man opened it and found an exercise book. On the cover, the name 'Baraka Musa' was written. Inside the book, there was a phone number. The man called Baraka's father.

Baraka's father came quickly in a taxi. They took Baraka to hospital. Later, we heard that Baraka got better and he was discharged.

Questions

1. What is the main idea of the story?
   A. Baraka's father arrived by taxi.
   B. A schoolboy had been hit by a car and rushed to hospital.
   C. A man opened Baraka's school bag.
   D. The bus stopped suddenly.
   Answer: _____
2. Which one is a supporting idea (a small important detail)?

(b) Read carefully the story of Grandmother's pumpkin. Then, answer the questions that follow.

Grandmother's pumpkin

Once upon a time, in a small village, there lived a wise old grandmother, called Mama Siti. She loved to plant pumpkins in her garden. One year, she had grown the biggest pumpkin she had ever seen. It was bright orange and sat proudly in the middle of her garden, just waiting to be harvested.

One morning, a curious hare hopped by. The hare, known for high speed, would often admire Mama Siti's garden. Today, his eyes landed on the giant pumpkin. "Oh, what a beautiful pumpkin!" He said to himself. "I will nibble on it when Mama Siti is not looking."

The hare waited patiently for Mama Siti to leave the garden. As soon as she was out of sight, the hare hopped to the pumpkin and took a big bite. But to his surprise, the pumpkin skin was too tough to bite. "This is not tasty at all!" he exclaimed.

Mama Siti, who had been watching the hare from behind a tree, smiled and called out, "Little hare, the pumpkin was meant for sharing, not stealing. If you had asked, I would have given you a piece."

The hare felt ashamed and embarrassed. "I'm sorry, Mama Siti. I should have asked."

From that day on, the hare learned an important lesson: It's better to ask for what you want than to steal.

Unit Nine

Speaking English clearly and naturally

Introduction

Spoken language has special features that help people speak smoothly and naturally. In this unit, you will learn to speak clearly and naturally in English. You will practise connected speech like saying 'they'll' instead of 'they will' and 'there's' instead of 'there is.' You will also learn how sounds in words change or disappear when we speak quickly, like saying 'next door' as 'nexdoor' or 'used to' as 'useto.' Finally, you will practise using tag questions, like 'You like reading, don't you?' or 'She's your friend, isn't she?' The competences developed will help you understand and speak English more naturally.

Think about how the sounds of words can change speech when we pronounce them quickly.

Practising connecting words in speaking

(a) Say the following sentences in the way they are said.

1. I had an assignment.
2. They will come tomorrow.
3. But they will not stay long.
4. Let us talk about it.
5. That is the best option.
6. She is a bad girl.

When we speak words often join together. This is called connected speech. Let see how the above sentences sound when we say them naturally.

1. I had an assignment. → Sounds like "I hadanassignment".
2. They will come tomorrow. → Becomes "They'll come tomorrow".
3. But they won't stay long → Becomes "But they won't stay long".
4. Let us talk about it. → Sounds like "Let's takaboutit".
5. That is the best option. → Sounds like "That's the bestoption".
6. She is a bad girl. → Sounds like "Sheez a bad girl".

For online use only

(b) With the guidance from offline and online sources such as Microsoft Read Aloud and Voice Control for Gemini, listen to the connected pronunciation of words in the sentences above.

Did you know?

Some words sound different when they are alone and when they are said with other words. For example, the end of one word can blend into the beginning of the next word. This makes our speech flow smoothly without breaks.

Unit Ten

Expressing simple messages

Introduction

In our daily lives, we often talk about things around us, share ideas, and give information to others. In this unit, you will learn to speak clearly and correctly by making simple statements about objects and ideas that can be judged as true or false. You will also practise giving short speeches about yourself, your family, and familiar topics like your pet, a birthday party, or a wedding. The competences developed will enable you to communicate clearly and effectively.

Think about what makes people speak clearly and express their thoughts confidently.

Making statements about objects and ideas that can be judged as true or false

Unit Eleven

Writing clear and concise messages

Introduction

Writing concise messages helps us to share our feelings and talk to others. We can write thank-you notes to show gratitude and appreciation and apologise when we make mistakes. We need to use correct grammar and vocabulary to write these messages correctly. In this unit, you will learn to write thank-you and apology notes. You will practise writing notes to teachers, friends, and parents. The competences developed will enable you to talk to others and share your feelings.

Think about how your parents or friends feel when you write them a note saying 'thank you' or 'sorry'.

Identifying the form and content of appreciation, thank-you and apology notes written to teachers, friends and parents

Short messages can be used to communicate your feelings to people you like and respect. You can also use them to say sorry to people you upset. The following are examples of different short messages which you can write to communicate your feelings.

(i) Appreciation messages

Appreciation message is a short written or spoken expression of gratitude or thankfulness toward someone for something he or she has done, given or said. It acknowledges person's effort, kindness, help, support or positive action.

For Online Use Only

Read the following appreciation messages and answer the questions that follow.

Appreciation message 1

Dear Mr Mdolwa, my former English teacher,

I am very grateful for your support in my education. If it had not been for your help, I would not have been able to complete my studies. Your kindness and guidance have inspired me a lot.

Once again, thank you for your encouragement and financial support.

Sincerely,

Kazimoto Majuto

Appreciation message 2

Dear Mom and Dad,

I want to take a moment to say a big thank you for everything you do for me. Your love, support, and guidance mean so much to me. I would not be where I am today without your support.

I truly appreciate all the sacrifices you make to ensure I have a good education and a bright future. Your kindness and hard work inspire me every day.

Thank you for always believing in me. I promise to work hard and make you proud.

With love,

Mohamed

4. A neighbour who was kind to you

(iii) Apology notes

Read the following dialogue and answer the questions that follow.

Teacher: Good morning, class! Today, we're going to learn how to write an apology note. Can anyone tell me what an apology note is?

Pupil 1: It's a note we write when we say sorry to someone.

Teacher: That's right! An apology note is a short message we write when we want to say sorry for a mistake we've made. Why do you think writing an apology note is important?

Pupil 2: It helps to show that we regret what we did.

Pupil 3: It also helps to fix broken friendship or relationship.

Teacher: Exactly! An apology note helps us take responsibility for our actions and show that we're truly sorry. Now, let's talk about the form of an apology note. Do you remember the parts of a good note?

Pupil 4: It should have a greeting, a body, and a closing.

Teacher: Very good! The greeting is where we address the person we are apologising to, like Dear John or Dear Teacher. The body of the note is where we say what we are sorry for and why. We should also promise to do better next time. Finally, the closing is where we end politely with Sincerely or Yours truly, followed by name.

Pupil 5: So, in the body, we must explain why we're sorry.

For online use only

Teacher: Yes! And we should be honest and polite. Now, let's talk about the stages of writing an apology note. The first stage is planning. What should we think about before writing?

Pupil 6: We should think about what we've done wrong.

Pupil 7: We should also decide how to express our feelings.

Teacher: Good answers! The second stage is drafting. This is when we write our first version of the note, following the correct form. The third stage is editing. What do we check during this stage?

Pupil 8: We check for spelling and grammatical errors.

Pupil 9: We also check if our message is clear and polite.

Teacher: Excellent! The last stage involves writing the final, neat copy. Now, let's write an apology note together. Imagine you accidentally broke a friend's pencil. How'd you get started?

Pupil 10: I'd write, "Dear [Friend's Name], I am very sorry for breaking your pencil."

Teacher: Great! Now, continue by explaining why it happened and what you'll do to make it right. Let's write our notes and then share them!

Questions

1. What is an apology note?
2. When do you need to write an apology note?
3. What are the three main parts you will include in the apology note?
4. What will you include in the greeting of the apology note?
5. What will you write in the body of the apology note?
6. How will you end the apology note?

Unit Twelve

Writing creatively

Introduction

Writing creatively involves using imagination and creativity to write stories, poems, and other fun texts. It improves your creativity and writing skills. In this unit, you will learn how to create a journal to record things that inspire you at home, school, or on TV and radio. Then, you will pick one idea from your journal and write a short poem. You will also learn to use basic figures of speech like similes, metaphors, and personification in your poem. The competences developed will enable you to write creative texts, like journals about your daily life.

Think about improving your basic creative writing skills.

Creating a journal for recording inspiring things (at home, at school, from TV and radio programmes, etc.)

Read the following story to learn about writing a journal of important things.

Best friend

One day, two friends were walking through a large semi-desert area. They were having fun, but then they disagreed. One of the friends became so angry that he slapped the other one. The friend who was slapped felt hurt, but instead of saying anything, he wrote in the sand, “Today, my best friend slapped me on the face.”

They continued walking until they came across a large, muddy pond. The friend who had been slapped accidentally slipped and got stuck in the mud. He was nearly drowning. The other friend quickly threw a rope and pulled him out. After being rescued, he wrote on a big stone, “Today, my best friend saved my life.”

The friend who had slapped him asked, “When I hurt you, you wrote in the sand, and when I helped you, you wrote on the stone, why?”

The friend smiled and said, “When someone hurts us, we should write it in the sand, where the wind can blow it away. But when someone does something kind for us, we should write it where the wind cannot blow it away because kindness should never be forgotten.”

Questions

1. Why do you think the friend chose to write in the sand?
2. Why do you think the friend chose to write on the stone?
3. What can we learn from the way the friend treated both kind and unkind actions?
4. What does the story teach us about how we should handle things in life?
5. Do you think writing a journal can help us remember good moments and forget bad ones? Explain how.
6. If you were in the story, would you write in the sand or on the stone? Why?
7. Can writing our thoughts in a journal help us?

Reading practice

Read the following example of a journal written by a Standard Five pupil to record things that inspired him on a TV programme. Then, answer the questions that follow.

Date: 8th March 2025

Title: A memorable news item on a TV programme

Source: TV news about One Copy, One Pupil

What inspired me: Today, I heard the news that the government of the United Republic of Tanzania, through the Ministry of Education Science and Technology and the Tanzania Institute of Education, plans to produce enough copies so that every pupil will have a personal copy for each subject. This news greatly inspired me. It means I will have access to those books at school and home. This will improve my understanding of the subjects.

My thoughts and feelings: I was very happy to hear the news. I immediately shared it with my parents, who were also very excited.

Reflection: The news reminded me of the impact of two or three pupils sharing one copy and the importance of having a copy for each pupil.

Questions

1. What are the key components of the journal?
2. Why did the news about every pupil receiving a personal copy for each subject inspire the writer?
3. How does the pupil think having his or her own copy of each book will change the way he or she studies at home and school?
4. What challenges did she or he face when sharing books with other pupils, and how does this news solve challenges?

Writing a poem from your journal reflections

(a) Follow the steps below to write a poem from your journal reflections.

Step 1: Read the journal titled, A memorable news item on a TV programme
(Written by a Standard Five pupil)

Step 2: Think about the main idea

Ask yourself

(i) What happened in the journal?
(ii) How did the writer feel?

Example: The news was about ensuring that every pupil receives one copy of the textbook for each subject. The writer felt happy because of the ensured easier access to knowledge.

Step 3: Write the main idea in one sentence.
Example: The main idea is that more book copies will enhance learning.

Step 4: Choose the title for your poem

Pick a short title that matches the main idea.

Example titles: 'The positive move', 'Exciting news', 'Helping hand'

Step 5: Write your poem (3–4 line stanza)

(i) Use the main idea and your feelings.
(ii) Try to make it rhyme, but it's okay if it doesn't.
(iii) Use simple, clear words.

Step 6: Edit your poem

(i) Read it aloud.
(ii) Fix any spelling or punctuation errors.

(b) Write a poem from your journal.

Step 1: Go back to the journal you wrote.
Step 2: Read your journal again.
Step 3: Follow the same steps

(i) Write the main idea.
(ii) Choose a poem title.
(iii) Write 3–4 line stanza poem.
(iv) Edit your poem carefully.

Note that you should use words that show how you feel. You can also draw a picture to accompany your poem to stimulate creativity and enhance visualisation.

Using similes, metaphors and personifications to write a four-line stanza

(a) Read and act out the following dialogue.

Gift: Hi, Jayden.

Jayden: Hi, Gift. How're you?

Gift: I'm fine, and you?

Jayden: I'm fine too. Thanks.

Gift: Sorry, my brother, I heard our friends, Fausta and Semu, talking about using similes, metaphors and personifications in sentences. Do you understand these words? How do we use them?

Jayden: Okay, I only know how to use similes in sentences. It is when we compare two things using the words 'as' and 'like'.

Gift: Wow! Could you give examples for both words?

Jayden: Yes, you can say, "This milk is as cold as ice." or "This milk is cold like ice." Here, we've compared milk with ice.

Gift: Thank you. Now I can also compare two things, as you have done. For example, "The mango was as sweet as sugar."

Jayden: Great! But as I told you, I don't know how to use metaphors and personifications. Let's ask Fausta and Semu for help.

Gift: Sure! Luckily, we see them coming here too.

Jayden: Hello, Fausta and Semu! We're discussing how to use similes, metaphors, and personifications in sentences. But we only know how to use similes, which involve comparing two things using ‘as’ and ‘like’. We don’t know how to use metaphors or personifications. We need your help, please.

For online use only

Fausta: Right! We use metaphors when we compare one thing or person with another with similar characteristics. Here, we do not use the words ‘as’ and ‘like’. For example, we can say, “Juma is a lion.” This may imply that Juma is as brave as a lion.

Semu: As for personifications, we use them when we give qualities or characteristics of humans to non-living things. For example, “The sun smiled down on the village,” or “The snow whispered as it fell onto the ground.” Here, the sun and snow are given the human characteristics of smiling and whispering.

Gift and Jayden: Aha, thanks a lot! Now we understand, and we can use them confidently.

Fausta: My absolute pleasure!

Questions

1. What words are used when forming similes, according to Jayden? Give one example from the dialogue.
2. What is the difference between a simile and a metaphor, according to Fausta?
3. What example of personification does Semu give in the dialogue, and what human quality is used?
4. Why did Gift and Jayden ask Fausta and Semu for help?

For online use only

(b) From the dialogue, write sentences that show how to use similes, metaphors, and personifications.

Example

The sun smiled down on the village – personification

Reading practice

Read the following stanza aloud and answer questions that follow.

The sun wakes up and smiles so brightly,
Like a golden ball, it gives us light.
Hope is a seed that starts so small,
But grows to be the strongest of all.

Questions

1. Which line compares the sun to something else using the word "like"?
2. What line says that hope is something else? What is it called?
3. Which line makes the sun act like a person? What does the sun do?
4. Why do you think the poet uses these kinds of special words (like comparing and pretending things are people)?

Writing practice

Write a 4-line stanza choosing a theme from either nature, school, animals, or weather. The stanza should include:

1. At least one simile
2. At least one metaphor
3. At least one personification

Example of a stanza

The wind danced through the trees with glee, (personification)

The clouds were like ships sailing in the sky, (simile)

The sun, a golden eye, watched over me, (metaphor)

As birds sang songs that floated high, (personification)
